Indian Embassies across the World

You have heard a lot about the advantages of outsourcing and now you want your organization to reap the benefits of outsourcing to India. You have searched online for a few Indian outsourcing companies and you are convinced that outsourcing will be good for your business. However, you wish you could make a business visit to India to meet your vendor in person. You would like to personally check on the infrastructure used, the quality processes followed, the security measures taken, the level of network security and other important factors.

The first step towards making a business visit to India is to get a valid Indian business visa, which is a stamp marked certificate made by Indian immigration authorities on your passport. To get an Indian visa on your passport, you will have to apply for an Indian visa either in person or by post at the nearest Indian embassy or Indian consulate situated in your country.

What are Indian embassies & Indian consulates?

An embassy is a diplomatic building with an ambassador heading it. India has a large diplomatic network with Indian Embassies spread across the world and in neighboring locations to help foreign nationals visit India. Since India is a Commonwealth country, Indian missions situated in the capitals of other Commonwealth countries are referred to as High Commissions and the Indian ambassador who heads these Indian embassies are referred to as High Commissioners. If a country has important cities, you will also find Indian Consulates or Assistant High Commissions with Indian junior Ambassadors heading them.

Services offered at Indian embassies & Indian consulates

The government of India promotes the economic interests of the Indian business community and creates awareness about India through its Indian embassies and Indian consulates. At the nearest Indian consulate or Indian embassy in your country you can avail the following consular services:

- Visa services
- PIO services
- OCI services
- OCI miscellaneous services
- Passport services
- Miscellaneous services
